THROWING TOP GAME

Pambaram, also called Lattu, is a popular game among villagers in India. In the past, wooden tops were used, but they now come in bright colors. To play the game, two or more players wrap string around their top. Next, they unwind the string with a quick pulling motion, which causes the top to rotate on the ground. Players usually use the string to pick up the spinning top from the ground and direct it towards their palm, where it should remain spinning. The player whose top spins the longest is the winner.
